HISTORY OF MILITARY OPERATIONAL PARACHUTE JUMPS

HISTORY OF MILITARY OPERATIONAL PARACHUTE JUMPS.

It is necessary to clarify the inclusions and omissions of this history. The listed parachute drops include all that were made by uniformed and organized bodies of troops. The title of "Operational Jumps" is deliberate. These are not training or exercise jumps but they do include rescue parachute jumps and reinforcement jumps into what was enemy territory. The term "combat jump" has been purposely avoided, as it seems impossible to define a 'combat' jump from a 'reinforcement' jump. Not included are all landings by glider forces, although these were an integral part of the major airborne operations during WW-II. Also omitted from the Operational Parachute Jump section are the numerous jumps made in civilian dress by personnel of the various intelligence agencies, such as the British SOE, USA OSS and French BCRA.

Where available, the insertion by parachute of missions to support the Resistance and Parisians are included, but some information may still not be available. The dates and locations of the drop zones are the best that can be found in the multitude of records, and in several operations there is a variance in the records from different sources to include the actual number of jump participants. Many of the operational jumps that involved personnel from different nations sometimes had different Operation/Mission names which may have resulted in some duplication in this records. In the case of many of the agent type drops, additional details, name, etc., are available in records but there is insufficient space here to present the full, fascinating story of each operation. If anyone has more definitive details, please advise so this record can be amended.

While this is an exhaustive record of Military Operational Parachute Jumps, it is felt there are no doubt others which are not recorded here, such as have been recently conducted in Afghanistan. If any reader has information on additional operational jumps, please contact us so the information can be added to this History.

COMMENTS:

A. Russian records of their operational drops of the Czech supported 2nd Parachute Brigade forces have been extremely difficult to obtain.

One Russian source states: "A total of 24 Czech and Soviet Partisans, divided into 24 Groups were dropped on Slovak territory in July and August 1944". Another source further states: "that in the last half of 1944 alone, 53 Groups jumped". Following the war a Czechoslovakian commemorative insignia for the Mnich Parachute Company appeared and it is believed the unit was part of these partisan forces.

To complete the story of the 2nd Parachute Brigade. The Germans counter-attacked the area and the Brigade was forced to withdraw into the mountains to continue resistance during the winter of 1944. On 20 November 1944, the Brigade was renamed the 2nd Brigade of Partisans and it held out until the final liberation. In 1946, the 22nd Airborne Brigade was formed at Prostejev to continue the history.

B. The USSR established the Polish Independent Assault Battalion on 18 October 1943. The unit was later redesignated as the Polish Independent Special Battalion (Assault). In January 1945, the unit was redesignated as the Polish Parachute Group of Reconnaissance, Information and Sabotage - GPPRIS

C. MACV SOG took over the program inserting intelligence teams into North Vietnam from the CIA in January 1964)

D. There may appear to be some conflict in the name of the Jedburgh Teams. This is due to fact that the teams were given an English name, but the French, who provided the radio operators, often used a different name for the same mission. Hence, at times the records can be confusing.

NOTES:

- 1/XXX = Subunit. i.e. 1/FJR = 1st Company, 1st Parachute Regiment (German)

- 6th Company Parachutist Para Marche. This was an ad hoc unit formed in 1947 in Madagascar from the Company Marche of the 2nd Para Bn Choc to conduct four local combat jumps, after which time the organization was disbanded.

- Base South. This is a term for the French Indochina era Base Aéroportée Sud = South Airborne Base. This base was established in Saigon on 1 January 1949 and deactivated on 31 December 1954.

- Some airborne operations took place over several different dates. All dates of the operational jumps are shown and the last date for any operation will often have the total of men dropped during the operation.

- Czechoslovakia WW-II parachute jumps were made by forces under operational control of the U.K., USA, French, etc. Allied forces (W-West). Other jumps were made by Czech forces under operational control of the Russians (E-East).

- Estonia (G) indicates teams of German units composed of Estonian national members.

- Fireforce, the Rhodesian Rapid Reaction Force, airborne.

- Jedburgh Teams. These were joint nationality service special forces teams operating for the SOE and OSS. Members included USA, British, French, Dutch and others. The British later used the same term for all British teams who later operated in Burma.

- "Mastiff" teams were British and Indian medical teams who conducted Prisoner of War rescues and assistance.

- Polish Airborne Shock Group Brygada "Grunwald" was a Russian trained and supported Polish Unit.

- Polish WW-II parachute jumps were made by forces under operational control of the U.K., USA, French, etc. Allied forces (W-West). Other jumps were made by Polish forces under operational control of the Russians (E-East).

- Selous Scouts, The Rhodesian Special Forces

- Service d'Action, the special (action) section of the French Intelligence Service.

- Siam, old name for present Thailand.

- Special Groups were British and Gurkha units with the mission of establishing and training the resistance in Burma for Force 136.

- Support Groups were British and Gurkha units with the mission of assisting resistance groups in Malaya for Force 136.
